MARSHA HANEN AWARD FOR EXCELLENCE IN CREATING COMMUNITY AWARENESS

Phil Baker has created new pathways into post-secondary life for countless students, especially Aboriginal students and those from minority groups. Finding innovative ways to meet real student needs, Baker has helped ensure many students graduate and become successful teachers in our community.

Baker has strengthened the academic rigour of the Winnipeg Education Centre program, developed to serve students in the inner city. Under his leadership, enrolment has been stabilized, retention rates have soared, and the hiring rate of graduates has increased dramatically.

Baker has also developed and helped to expand other successful programs, including the Community-based Aboriginal Teacher Education Program. This allows educational assistants to work while studying part-time, so they may become teachers in their own right. The program has expanded to service

Several school divisions, including two First Nations Communities. The Immigrant Teacher Education Program supports newcomers with teaching backgrounds in gaining the credentials in Education helps build and support Aboriginal teachers' skill sets.

HE UNIVERSI

The years following 1938 saw steady progress in the development of United College. In 1951 a Theological and General Library Building was opened (later named Bryce Hall after the founder of Manitoba College); in 1959 Manitoba Hall, the Arts and Science Building and Ashdown Hall were opened; in the autumn of 1962, Graham Hall, the “new” men’s residence was completed, and by December of that year, Riddell Hall was ready for occupancy, boasting a large dining hall, a cafeteria, a gymnasium and auditorium; in 1969-70 construction on Ellice Avenue resulted in Lockhart Hall.

In the summer of 1970 work began on yet another building, designed to rise above and integrate most of the earlier structures and provide space for an enlarged and modern library, facilities for expanding teaching departments, offices for an increasing faculty and a new cafeteria to serve student needs. This seven-storey building was completed in 1972, officially opened in September, and named Centennial Hall in recognition of the University’s centennial celebrations of 1971-72.
