

FACULTY OF ARTS

The German Studies program in the Department of Modern Languages and Literatures offers up-to-date, effective language instruction for beginners through to advanced students.

Even if you have no prior knowledge of German, it is possible to begin and complete a degree in German Studies. Many students choose to combine a degree in this area with a related field such as English, French, History, or Education. Even if you do not major in German Studies, taking courses in this area will enrich your education and can be used to meet the Humanities Requirement. Courses in German culture and literature are available in both English and German.

This program leads to a with a Major in German Studies.

Students taking an undergraduate degree in another Major may choose to add a Minor in German Studies as a secondary area of interest.

German Studies graduates may find employment in a variety of areas, from teaching to library science, from publishing to travel and hospitality. Knowledge of the German language and culture is an asset for any career involving international trade and communications, such as business administration, marketing, the arts and media, government, and diplomacy.

is a first-year course for students with little or no previous knowledge of German. This course provides a solid base in vocabulary, grammar, and pronunciation. Small conversation classes help students learn practical applications of the language in communication.

uses German feature films to help students develop their language skills and learn about the culture and history of German-speaking Europe since the 1920s.

allows you to put your German skills to use and learn about current events in German-speaking countries by reading online news and entertainment sites and blogs, listening to podcasts and watching shows, documentaries and news – all in German. Students develop speaking, listening, reading and writing skills and improve their German vocabulary.

Within my first few days at UWinnipeg, I felt at home in the German Studies program's close-knit community, whose members shared a keen interest in German language and culture. The variety of course offerings, along with the many extracurricular activities and work/study opportunities, were just some of the reasons why I chose to pursue a BA in German Studies.
